Mrs. Prideaux's Weekly Newsletter

For the Week of October 14th

Math

At the end of this week, I will be sending home login information for two accounts (Xtramath and Prodigy). These accounts are math games. These math games serve to increase math fact fluency and overall math concept fluency. In the past two weeks, I have worked with the students to login and complete placement tests. They are on their way now to play the games on their own. Have fun and master math!

Important dates

October 17th: Early dismissal 11 a.m./Parent and teacher conferences

October 18th: No school

Virtue of the Month: Obedience

"Put your heart aside. Duty comes first. But when fulfilling your duty, put your heart into it. It helps."

— St. Josemaria Escriva

This week's focus…

Religion: The students will be preparing for our mass on October the 16th. I hope that you will be able to join us.

Reading: The student will continue to practice the strategy of visualization and explore realistic fiction.

Word Work: The students will identify the short sound of o and "O" word families.

Writer's Workshop: This week we will begin exploring personal narratives.

Math: The students will revisit addition and the strategy of counting on until we reach our answer.

Science: We will review and take our final assessment.

Reminders:

Make sure to dress your child in layers, the weather is up and down.

In the Thursday folder you should have received your conference time. I look forward to seeing you!
