WELCOME

St. Stanislaus is reaching out in service to our diverse neighborhood peoples. Please be generous in your support of the many good works of our Parish. St. Stanislaus depends upon the regular support of its membership and the generosity of those who visit here. Please look upon your financial gift or sacrifice as a way of giving praise to God along with the many from earlier generations who have worshiped and prayed here for 130 years.

...The number of US citizens killed in Iraq since the initial invasion (that according to what is broadcast on television). One might present those same statistics in a totally different manner: 1,903....The number of American heroes who gave their lives for the liberation of Iraq and furthering the cause of democracy across the globe. It's all in how you choose to view things. By the way, we should remember that the number of 'casualties' does not calculate the total number of lives lost...after all, we assume the Iraqis are also human beings as are all the other troops involved in the conflict.

At this coming Saturday's concert here at St. Stanislaus, the orchestra will initiate the season with a musical moment honoring all those who have lost their lives in this most recent war, as well as those who must continue to operate in that arena, putting their own lives on the line each moment. At the beginning of their program CityMusic will perform a short, intense and lyrical work by Beethoven honoring those human beings who have sacrificed and/or lost their lives on the opposite side of our globe.

Will this musical event unite us? Will it deepen the wedge between those on the right and the left? Will it change minds? Harden hearts? Probably not to all the aforementioned. Art has always been employed to glorify as well as to inspire. Great art definitely penetrates the top layer of reality and shines light on a truth that transcends the mindless bickerings of humanity.

As I mentioned in this column last week, music has the power to heal, to change, to soothe, to comfort. While under its influence your prayers can reach levels higher than the angels. Treat yourself like a human being this coming Saturday evening – come join us for an evening of beautiful sound and transform it into a prayer for peace.

COMING HOME

Two weeks ago, our Parish Pastoral Council held its annual retreat to set goals and arrange priorities for the upcoming year. What a dedicated group, to be willing to spend a sunny Sunday at a meeting, instead of enjoying the fresh warm sun and the cool breezes of the afternoon. It was a productive retreat, even though I had to be pulled away to help someone through a pastoral situation. At the end of the day-long meeting, many stayed and enjoyed a nice potluck meal together before joining the many other parishioners who had dedicated countless hours of time throughout the week packing the material aid we sent to Mississippi the following day. These, in turn, were joined by members of our Lil Bros Club, who came to help but ended up just having some fun instead, as most of the work had been done.

Morning Mass, retreat, pastoral care, fellowship meal, mission project, youth group — all in one day. I found myself wondering how it is possible to squeeze so much into one day, realizing that if God gives a task, he will certainly provide what is needed to accomplish it. I also recognized that my day is probably not much different from the kind of days that many families experience. We have busy lives, going about many good things. This is the life of one's home, be it the family home, or our parish home.

Perhaps this is why it is so fitting that our Pastoral Council has chosen as a focus for the year the notion of our parish as our home. Like every household, it alternates between busyness and calm, order and chaos, messy and clean, happy and grouchy, festive and sad.

Thousands of guests are coming to our house for dinner!

Like every household, we have our common stories, our legends, our embarrassments. We even have a few "characters," but watch out whom you identify as one, because chances are that someone else thinks you are one, too!

In less than two weeks, we will have a chance to come together as a big household again. Thousands of guests are coming to our house for dinner! They are coming to our annual Polish Festival for a kind of family reunion. When guests come to your own home, you go out of the way to clean the place up, to get a nice big meal ready, to decorate a bit, to make sure the kids are on their best behavior, to let the neighbors know there will be a few extra cars around. You may even need the next day off from work, just to catch up and get some rest.

Guess what? Your house is like our house. This annual Festival belongs to all of us. It is the only parish event, besides Mass, that gathers parishioners from every group, club, age, neighborhood, and segment of our vast and busy campus. The revenue it generates is crucial (as pastor, I can't emphasize this enough...) to getting us through the autumn. Even more important, it builds up our sense of community, our experience of church as a family — the family of God, in one big household. So get those ovens fired up, set some time aside, sell those raffle tickets, and invite your friends to our home!

SLOWA I CZYNY

Chyba każdy człowiek świadom jest tego, że jest w jakiś sposób obciążony i ograniczony sytuacją rodzinną, zespołem wychowania i środowiska. Dlatego zawsze aktualne będą pytania: Jak dalece jesteśmy odpowiedzialni za swoje osobiste wybory i czyny? Jaka jest indywidualna miara konsekwencji naszych decyzji?

Kwestie te powracają w dzisiejszej Liturgii Słowa w sposób niezwykle wyrazisty. Były jednak one aktualne zawsze. Na wiele wieków przed Chrystusem w okresie upadku religijno-moralnego powtarzano sarkastyczne przysłowie na temat zbiorowej odpłaty w Starym Testamencie: „Ojcowie jedli cierpkie jagody, a synom zdrotwiały zęby” (Jr 31,29). Wynikało z niego, że cierpienia spotykają człowieka za winy przodków, więc praca nad właściwą postawą moralną jest zbędna. W dzisiejszym pierwszym czytaniu prorok Ezechiel zakazuje używania tego przysłowia: „Nie będziecie więcej powtarzali tej przypowieści w Izraelu” i, podkreślając odpowiedzialność osobistą, ustala, że „umrze tylko ta osoba, która zgrzeszyła”. Nauczanie prorockie ukazuje, że Bóg sędzi człowieka według tego, kim jest, dając mu możliwość stałego nawracania się: „Ja nie mam żadnego upodobania w śmierci - mówi Pan. - Zatem nawróćcie się, a życie będziecie”. Nawrócenie człowieka - ukazane na kartach zarówno Starego, jak i Nowego Testamentu - jest dla Boga czymś tak istotnym, że nawet dotychczasowe złe postępowanie zostaje zapomniane, a Bóg daje „nowy początek” życia temu, który się ku Niemu nawrócił.

Kiedy dzisiaj rozważamy powyższe słowa, jakże nie powrócić do sierpniowego spotkania z Piotrem naszych dni, który wolał w Kolonii: „Zdajemy sobie sprawę, że Chrystusowe wezwanie do miłości wzajemnej na wzór Jego miłości » oddającej życie« wyznacza nam wszystkim te same miary! Doznajemy niejako przynaglenia, abysmy korzystając z daru miłosiernej miłości Boga, sami z dnia na dzień oddawali życie, czyniąc miłosierdzie wobec braci. Uświadomiamy sobie, że Bóg okazując nam miłosierdzie, oczekuje, że będziemy świadkami miłosierdzia w dzisiejszym świecie”.

Wszyscy, i każdy z osobna zostaliśmy zaproszeni do uczestnictwa w życiu Bożym, do osobistej współpracy w winnicy Paskiej „na czas i na wieczność”. Zauważmy w Ewangelii, że obydwaj chłopcy otrzymują takie samo zaproszenie. Ten szczególnie ma podstawowe znaczenie: niezależnie od tego, jaka jest nasza sytuacja i nasze życie, Bóg kieruje do nas takie samo fundamentalne wezwanie i to samo nam ofiarowuje. Różnice między nami mogą wydawać się wielkie, ale są one bardzo powierzchowne wobec najważniejszego wyboru: powiedzieć Jezusowi "tak" czy "nie".

Pamiętajmy więc, że kryterium i miara nie będą słowa czy nawet przynależność do Kościoła, lecz czyny miłości i miłosierdzia w imię Chrystusa.

ST. STANS HISTORICAL FACT

The paintings or murals on the walls behind and to the side of the high main altar depict sacrificial acts recounted in the Old Testament. The paintings were done in fresco technique. This involves the application of pigments to the surface of a newly spread layer of wet plaster. When dry the plaster and the paint become one.

Several parishioners are among the center's staff, and work to ameliorate the needs of the poor. We ask that parishioners donate such food items as beef stew, canned meats and fruits, pasta and sauce, vegetables, peanut butter, jelly, toilet paper and other non-perishables to the center, to help keep its shelves fully stocked.
