FOOD FOR THOUGHT

What are pregnancy centers? Pro-life pregnancy centers exist to provide abortion-vulnerable pregnant women with options and help them to choose life for themselves and their unborn children. At these centers, women are usually offered a free pregnancy test and a free ultrasound. If pregnant, they may also be provided access to childbirth classes and other essential materials including maternity clothing.

Throughout the pregnancy and after the birth of the child, pregnancy centers also play an important role in providing emotional and spiritual support to mothers and their families. When the baby arrives, the center may also provide diapers, baby clothes, baby furniture, parenting classes and even information on employment opportunities. Guidance through the adoption process is another important role that pregnancy centers fill.

Throughout the United States, over 2,500 pro-life pregnancy centers now outnumber abortion clinics by more than four to one. Even so, pregnancy centers do not have the same access to funding as abortion facilities.
