VALUING EVERY LIFE

In yesterday's reading from the 15th chapter of John's gospel, Jesus' clear message to his friends is quite simple, "This is my commandment: love one another as I love you." We know that this simple message comes with a very big caution, to love as Jesus did means to be willing to sacrifice all for the good of all. When religious and political leaders saw their power threatened by Jesus' message of love and compassion, they joined forces to execute him. True love is willing to sacrifice everything.

Thirty-six years ago, Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, framed this love as the "consistent ethic of life" or the "seamless garment". He saw that when we tried to prioritize one group of human lives over another, we created a self-defeating framework that devalued all lives.

We humans have a tendency to want to fit in to social groups, which in recent years, often align along political divisions. Committing to value all lives ensures that we will be misfits; like Jesus, we will probably make everyone unhappy. Our progressive friends will be uncomfortable when we defend the humanity of a child before birth and our conservative friends will be challenged when we insist that those children receive all the supports they need to thrive after they're born. They'll all be uncomfortable when we challenge them to prioritize future generations by creating a healthy planet now.

God's grace and our own life experiences, will inspire our passions more strongly around different life issues. As Catholics we value all lives, born or unborn, young or old, free or in prison, regardless of gender, race, nationality or social standing. All are precious in God's eyes. Catholic social teaching calls us to see the world and each other through a Jesus lens. What could be more beautiful or more challenging?

"Racism arises when—either consciously or unconsciously—a person holds that his or her own race or ethnicity is superior, and therefore judges persons of other races or ethnicities as inferior and unworthy of equal regard. When this conviction or attitude leads individuals or groups to exclude, ridicule, mistreat, or unjustly discriminate against persons on the basis of their race or ethnicity, it is sinful. Racist acts are sinful because they violate justice. They reveal a failure to acknowledge the human dignity of the persons offended, to recognize them as the neighbors Christ calls us to love (Mt 22:39).

STOP PHYSICIAN-ASSISTED SUICIDE

From the NY State Catholic Conference:
Proponents of doctor-assisted suicide are pushing their agenda in states across the country, and New York is in their sights. This week they come to Albany as they seek to make it legal for terminally ill patients to receive life-ending drugs. These policies are dangerous for patients, caregivers, and vulnerable populations. Suicide is not medical care. Please tell your Senate and Assembly representatives that you oppose this deadly practice. Send an email message to your elected officials today.
