Auctoritas

He represented the greatest empire the world ever saw. Its boundaries extended as far west as Iceland, as far east as the Mongolians and Ottomans, as far south as the top third of Africa, and as far north as Denmark. He was called the procurator by later historians, but was in fact a Prefect, a military governor. He commanded a small legion, but could call on the full force of Rome from its main Eastern base in Syria. His responsibilities included collecting taxes and supervising construction projects, but his main role was to maintain the law, as the Romans defined it. He had the power of judgement, including life and death. He came from the lowest rank of the Roman families. He was an equestrian, a knight. But that no longer mattered, for as prefect, or as later writers would call him, as procurator, he had auctoritas. Auctoritas was more than simply authority. He had prestige, clout, influence, and the ability to rally support around his will. He could make people do what he wanted just by being who he was. He wasn't just Pontius Pilate, prefect later called procurator. He was Rome.

He most likely reclined as he spoke to the man who was his polar opposite. Jesus had no social rank. He wasn't even a Judean. He was a Galilean. He did not command armies. He did not represent a physical power. As far as Pilate was concerned, Jesus possessed no auctoritas. He was accused by His own people of calling Himself a king, but He certainly didn't appear to be a king. Pilate amazed himself that he even bothered to engage this commoner in conversation. But Pilate's wife, Claudia Procula, had just sent him a message to have nothing to do with this just man who haunted her dreams. Like any husband he did the opposite of what his wife said. Present company excepted, of course. Pilate was fascinated with Jesus. He asked him if He was the King of the Jews. Jesus returned the question by asking Pilate if he was merely responding to what others had said about Him or if he was sincerely seeking to know who Jesus was. After Pilate's bluster, "I am not a Jew," Jesus spoke about His kingship. He said that His kingdom was not here, but was beyond this world. Jesus also had auctoritas, auctoritas infinitely greater than the world had ever seen before. Jesus had the auctoritas of God. Indeed earlier the people had been amazed at Jesus' teaching because He spoke with such authority.

The Solemnity of Christ the King demands that we consider where we seek authority. Who are those whom we acknowledge as people of power and prestige? And what degree of authority do we give them over us? We respect the authority of our police, and do as they say when they ask us to leave an area, go someplace, or simply, slow our car down. We recognize the authority of our firefighters when they tell us not to enter a burning building, even if it is our own house. We recognize the authority of our military leaders as they lead our men and women to defend our country. We recognize the authority of our political leaders, as they seek to advance our society. We recognize the authority of our doctors and nurses and all in the medical field as they seek to care for us. But all these people, and those representing so many other professions, only have a limited authority over us. They cannot force us to think as they think. The fascists and the communists tried that. They tried to impose thought on people. They couldn't. At least they couldn't impose thought on people who were aware of the limitation of civil authorities. They couldn't impose thought on people who recognized the authority of God.

We cannot allow elements of our society to dictate what we are to think, to say, and to do. We cannot be told that something is right because it is supported by a civil law. Slavery was supported by the law until the thirteenth amendment was passed on January 31, 1865 and was ratified December of that year. But slavery was always wrong. Civil law cannot surmount natural law, the law of God written in our consciences. Thousands, tens of thousands of martyrs have willingly accepted death

Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe

rather than give civil authorities ultimate authority over their lives. From 12 year old Agnes of Rome to 80 year old Ignatius of Antioch, from Thomas More, the second most powerful man in sixteenth century England, to Blessed Miguel Pro, a simple parish priest in twentieth century Mexico who died calling “Vivo Cristo Rey,” God’s authority remained supreme. And so it must be for us. We recognize the auctoritas of God, not that of Pilate.

Nor can we allow popular opinion to dictate our consciences. We cannot be slaves to pollsters. We cannot submit our consciences to the prevailing mood of what some claim is a majority, although those claiming to be Bolsheviks are usually Mensheviks, those claiming the majority are usually the minority. We have to take a stand for the truth, whether it is popular or not.

“As for me and my family, we will serve the Lord,” Joshua announced after Jericho was conquered and the Hebrew people were establishing their families in the Promised Land. He would be a man of God inhabiting what had been a pagan land. We also must be people of God. We cannot submit to the slavery of the mind police. We cannot give anyone ultimate authority over our lives. Our Kingdom is not of this world.

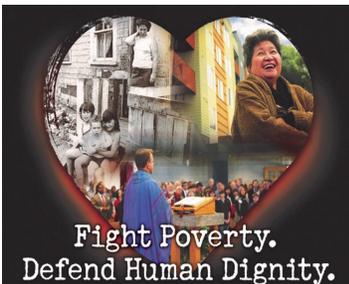

Following Jesus Christ, the King, demands that we stand apart from those elements of society that refuse to recognize His authority. Following Jesus Christ our King, forces us to make decisions that are determined by the law of God, not the popular opinion of the day. Following Jesus Christ the King, necessitates that we be separate from much of society. To be separate is to be holy. Giving auctoritas to Jesus Christ frees us to be holy. Allowing God to be the ultimate authority in our lives gives us the capacity to be the unique reflections of God’s presence He created each of us to be.

Pontius Pilate and Jesus of Nazareth – were there ever two more diametrically opposed participants in a conversation? Only one of them understood what authority really was. And He died on the cross to which the other had condemned Him.

It sounds so lovely to say that Jesus Christ is our King. All of us want to affirm that we choose Jesus, not Pilate. It is wonderful to proclaim to the world that Jesus Christ is our King. But to live like this, well that is different. That is difficult. It takes all the courage, all the spiritual strength that we can muster up to be members of His Kingdom.

We call upon our King today to help us be holy.

Yours in Christ,

Flowers to be distributed this week at Florida Hospital North Pinellas by Caritas volunteers were donated by Patricia Soto, in loving memory of her parents, Margaret & Thomas Monahan.

Eucharistic Adoration

...AND THE WORD BECAME FLESH & LIVED AMONG US....

Perhaps there is no more depthful expression of God's love than in what the Apostle John wrote at the beginning of his Gospel. "And we have seen His glory, the glory of a father's only son full of grace and truth..." Glory is not just an attribute about Who God is, but also how much God loves us by becoming one of us, so that we could become not only one with Him, but also one in whom and through whom Christ lives for others. We should take time out to reflect on the historical Christ in the Infancy narratives. It is certainly more worthwhile to dwell on Christ who was conceived in the womb of the Virgin Mary, lived among us as a true human man, while always remaining God, BUT WHO continues to live among us physically and divinely in the living Eucharist.

Every time we look at the Consecrated Host at Mass, visit a Tabernacle, or spend time in Adoration on a First Friday, we see the Eucharist is Jesus, who still gifts us with His same real Presence and speaks to us in His Words of the Gospel, and in the secret of our hearts by His Grace, which is the power of God's presence moving us closer to Him, if we allow Him that opportunity.

When the three Wise men or philosophers came from the East and found Jesus with His Mother Mary and foster father Joseph, they immediately fell to the ground and prostrated themselves before the infant baby who they considered a King. They gave Him three gifts to this mystery of the God Man; Gold which pointed to Jesus' kingship; incense to His divine sonship, and myrrh to His Passion and death on the Cross.

And so the question that challenges a grateful disciple is what gift can I give to Jesus this Christmas?
A certain truly pleasing gift, is to offer Him our time, ourselves, in thanksgiving and adoration during the First Friday on December 7th.

You decide the time and length of your visit. Wrap that gift now and please sign the Real Presence Witness Adoration Book in the Front of the Church. Jesus is the Eucharist (which means "thanksgiving") and He will be solemnly enthroned in the Monstrance from 9:30 a.m. ending with at 9 p.m. with Benediction.

The Great Adventure Begins again:

The Bible Time Line
 Returning by Popular Demand
 Presented by Deacon Sam Moschetto

Do you have trouble reading the Bible? You are not alone. Most people begin in the Book of Genesis and read chapter after chapter and book after book. But something happens when they get to the Books of Leviticus and Deuteronomy—they lose the story line and they stop reading.

The Bible Time Line approaches the Bible in such a way that you read it in chronological fashion so that the story continues on. You stay interested and you can remember the story of Salvation History.

There are several study features that allow you to follow easily and with great interest. The student works with a Study Guide that explains the material and a set of questions to aid the study. There is also a DVD presentation with Jeff Cavins who will reinforce what you learn.

The whole program is 24 weeks long and will be presented in two stages—the first 12 sessions in the Spring and the remaining 12 in the fall.

Session options are either Thursday mornings at 10:30 a.m. or Thursday evenings at 6:30 p.m. Sessions begin on January 10th.

Please fill out the registration form below and indicate your preference for the morning or evening session. Sessions last one and a half hour. Return the form with a check or cash to the Parish office. Please make checks to 'St. Ignatius of Antioch Church'.
