Update

I have not given you much of an update on myself for some time. As of this writing (Wednesday afternoon), I have been steadily feeling better since Christmas weekend. I am planning to say both morning Masses on Sunday the 16th, with a brother priest filling in for me at 5:30. I saw the neurologist on Monday, and he seemed at least satisfied with what he saw of me. Of late, my greatest challenge has been to avoid doing everything I think I am ready to be able to do, so that I can stay on track with resting up and recovering.

I wish to thank all of you for your prayers and patience during this time. A very special thank-you goes out to those who have been bringing food by the rectory under the coordination of Mary Ann Beck. You can't really imagine how much that means when your brain is tired out. Just to know that someone is coming by with food that I won't have to think about choosing or cooking has been itself a great comfort.

My goal today is to be back to the regular parish schedule beginning the last Sunday of this month. Of course, that may change, but this has been my longest "run" of days when I have felt that I am improving. Any spare prayers you have for St. Anne or Pope Blessed Pius IX would be appreciated...

God reward you.
