Life vs. Abortion: Former abortionist Dr. David Brewer tells how he assisted in an abortion by caesarian. When the water sack was broken he saw the baby moving. It was removed and placed in a cold stainless steel bowl nearby and left to die. The baby continued to struggle for life until the end. His thoughts were "my God, this is a person". Finally, his calloused brain and heart were realizing that all abortions are morally wrong and he stopped doing abortions. Thanks be to God! (LifeNews) and GF-RTL

He was not an eloquent speaker, but his words rang with sincerity and speeches Father delivered on these occasions were no exception. Those who attended these banquets, as well as those listening to radio still remember the message he had for them as he outlined Jewish history, literature and culture, and told them that all should dedicate themselves to the gospel of fraternal charity and brotherly love, and that finding the good in others was the key to better living and understanding.

Father was also a member of the Calvary Cemetery Association and was likewise on their board of directors. He took an active part in the association as well as the landscaping and upkeep of the cemetery grounds.

Though Father wished to help anyone in financial trouble, he asked these nominal fees for two reasons: first, he didn't think it fair that St. Mary's parishioners bear the added expense, and second, he felt people appreciated more what they had to pay for—even though the amount be small.
