

When Jesus saw his mother and the disciple there whom he loved he said to his mother, “Woman, behold, your son.” Then he said to the disciple, “Behold, your mother.” And from that hour the disciple took her into his home.” Words from our Gospel today from the 19th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John – sisters and brothers, may the Lord give to you his peace and his joy.

One of the devotions that has grown in popularity recently is praying the Stations of the Cross through the eyes of the Blessed Mother. There are many versions of this, but when he was here at Queen of Heaven as a seminarian, Fr. Bob Owczarczak also developed a unique set of stations entitled The First Time, which goes through the Stations of the Cross backwards as if journeying home with Mary as she retraced her steps from the tomb, to the cross, through the streets, to the steps of the governor’s palace back home... We just so happened to pray this set of the Stations of the Cross with the Ladies Sodality here at Queen of Heaven this year before the coronavirus pandemic set in. To think and pray about the events of the crucifixion through the eyes of Mary is a beautiful, albeit incredibly painful, glimpse into the passionate love of Christ for us all. During Palm Sunday every year, we listen to Passion of Christ as it is proclaimed to us through the Synoptic Gospels of Matthew, Mark, or Luke, but on Good Friday each year, it is the Gospel of John, and his Gospel alone, which details the conversation of Jesus with Mary and the beloved disciple at the foot of the cross: “Behold your son. Behold your mother.”

Jesus knew that his time of ministry on earth was finished, was accomplished and that a new time of ministry was about to begin. To help us disciples as we go forward in faith to minister in his name, Jesus gave us his mother to lead us in faith. Mary was often left to ponder many things about her son Jesus in the depths of her heart, but she always trusted that God was leading her through these many experiences of motherhood. Her “Yes” to God’s saving plan wasn’t a one-time deal, but something that she continually affirmed over and over again, all the way to the foot of the cross. To me, this is the epitome of Mary’s trust and hope in God’s plan, for I can just picture her, after watching her son breathe his last, looking up to heaven and crying out to God, “But you promised (2x)!” Did she not receive the promise of the angel those many years ago, that Jesus was to be the savior and that of his kingdom there would be no end? To all appearances, his reign was over. And yet on holy Saturday in between Good Friday and Easter Sunday, when the world is still and all hope seems lost – I believe it was Mary who still trusted that God could somehow work through this, and so she said yes to God on behalf of the whole church keeping faith alive in the darkest of times. As we move into Holy Saturday, we take refuge in the faith of Our Lady of Sorrows, which not coincidentally is the feast day that follows the exaltation of the cross on September 14th later on in our Church year.

From the cross, Jesus gave us his mother to be our mother. There is a scene from the show “the Big Bang Theory,” where one of the lead characters, Sheldon, is sick. He calls up his friend Howard on the phone complaining that he is in need of help. Now, if you know anything about Sheldon, it's that his personality can be rather unbearable to be around. So his friend Howard, trying to avoid getting suckered in to taking care of Sheldon, pretends to be his mother and says to Sheldon over the phone: "Howard's sleeping; this is his mother. Why are you calling at this ungodly hour?" Sheldon says, "I'm sick and need soup." "Then Call your own Mother!" Who do we turn to when we are sick? Our mothers... Our world is sick right now and we need a mother's care. Jesus gives us Mary to lead us in faith but also to take care of us with a mother's love. Time and again, we have the intercession and visitation of our blessed mother at Cana, at Gaudalupe, at Lourdes, at Fatima, and many other instances besides where Mary comes to take care of her hurting children. She continues to intercede for us, and in doing so, bears forth the grace of God still, bringing Jesus into our world even today. So we entrust ourselves to a mother's care. Pray with me: Hail Mary, full of grace the Lord is with thee, blessed art thou among women and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, Jesus. Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners now and at the hour of our death. Amen.

On that first Good Friday 2000 years ago, where were all the disciples? With the exception of the beloved disciple, they all ran away, they were at home, living in fear of being crucified themselves. I don't bring this up to shame us, who are ourselves sheltering in place because of the coronavirus pandemic we face. I mention this to give us a sense of relief, that even though like the disciples we couldn't be there for Jesus in his hour of need, that Jesus forgives us still and even continues to think of us and our situation. He knows that we need to practice our faith from our homes right now. So from that hour, the disciple took Mary into his home. Too often, Mary is used but not loved. We forget to invite her into our own homes and make her a part of our family. Perhaps, you can pray the Hail Mary or rosary together. Or maybe you put up a statue somewhere. When grandpa came to live with us, he brought with him his statue of Our Lady of Fatima, and we made a little garden in the backyard to which he attended daily. Parents, you can model the love for your children after Mary's great love. All of us can practice Mary's great virtues of faith, trust, love, obedience, prayerfulness, humility, purity, and patience. All of these are needed in our own homes as well. Whenever, however, we honor Mary, we honor Jesus and what he has done for us, for Mary always brings us to her son. That is why we need to take Mary into our homes.

So in these unprecedented times as we pick up our own crosses and follow Christ into the Paschal Mystery ourselves, we can: 1) look up to and emulate the faith of Mary and model her trust as we face suffering and death in our lives; 2) we can turn to our caring mother for her intercession over a world that is sick; and 3) we can invite her into our own homes to live out the faith together with her in the midst of our families. "Behold your mother. Behold your Son. And from that hour, the disciple took her into his home."

Good Friday of the Lord's Passion Lectionary: 40

READING 1 IS 52:13—53:12

See, my servant shall prosper,
he shall be raised high and greatly exalted.
Even as many were amazed at him so marred was his look beyond human semblance and his appearance beyond that of the sons of man so shall he startle many nations, because of him kings shall stand speechless;
for those who have not been told shall see,
those who have not heard shall ponder it.

Who would believe what we have heard?
To whom has the arm of the LORD been revealed?
He grew up like a sapling before him,
like a shoot from the parched earth;
there was in him no stately bearing to make us look at him,
nor appearance that would attract us to him.
He was spurned and avoided by people,
a man of suffering, accustomed to infirmity,
one of those from whom people hide their faces,
spurned, and we held him in no esteem.

Yet it was our infirmities that he bore,
our sufferings that he endured,
while we thought of him as stricken,
as one smitten by God and afflicted.
But he was pierced for our offenses,
crushed for our sins;
upon him was the chastisement that makes us whole,
by his stripes we were healed.
We had all gone astray like sheep,
each following his own way;
but the LORD laid upon him
the guilt of us all.

Though he was harshly treated, he submitted
and opened not his mouth;
like a lamb led to the slaughter or a sheep before the shearers,
he was silent and opened not his mouth.
Oppressed and condemned, he was taken away,
and who would have thought any more of his destiny?
When he was cut off from the land of the living,
and smitten for the sin of his people,

a grave was assigned him among the wicked and a burial place with evildoers, though he had done no wrong
nor spoken any falsehood.
But the LORD was pleased to crush him in infirmity.

If he gives his life as an offering for sin,
he shall see his descendants in a long life,
and the will of the LORD shall be accomplished through him.

Because of his affliction
he shall see the light in fullness of days;
through his suffering, my servant shall justify many,
and their guilt he shall bear.
Therefore I will give him his portion among the great,
and he shall divide the spoils with the mighty,
because he surrendered himself to death
and was counted among the wicked;
and he shall take away the sins of many,
and win pardon for their offenses.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM PS 31:2, 6, 12-13, 15-16, 17, 25

R. (Lk 23:46) Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.

In you, O LORD, I take refuge;
let me never be put to shame.
In your justice rescue me.

Into your hands I commend my spirit;
you will redeem me, O LORD, O faithful God.

R. Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.

For all my foes I am an object of reproach,
a laughingstock to my neighbors, and a dread to my friends;
they who see me abroad flee from me.

I am forgotten like the unremembered dead;
I am like a dish that is broken.

R. Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.

But my trust is in you, O LORD;
I say, "You are my God.
In your hands is my destiny; rescue me from the clutches of my enemies and my persecutors."

R. Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.

Let your face shine upon your servant;
save me in your kindness.

Take courage and be stouthearted,
all you who hope in the LORD.

R. Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.

READING 2 HEB 4:14-16; 5:7-9

Brothers and sisters:
Since we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens,
Jesus, the Son of God,
let us hold fast to our confession.
For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who has similarly been tested in every way,
yet without sin.
So let us confidently approach the throne of grace to receive mercy and to find grace for timely help.

In the days when Christ was in the flesh,
he offered prayers and supplications with loud cries and tears to the one who was able to save him from death,
and he was heard because of his reverence.
Son though he was, he learned obedience from what he suffered;
and when he was made perfect,
he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him.

VERSE BEFORE THE GOSPEL PHIL 2:8-9

Christ became obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross.
Because of this, God greatly exalted him and bestowed on him the name which is above every other name.

GOSPEL JN 18:1—19:42

Jesus went out with his disciples across the Kidron valley to where there was a garden, into which he and his disciples entered.
Judas his betrayer also knew the place,
because Jesus had often met there with his disciples.
So Judas got a band of soldiers and guards from the chief priests and the Pharisees and went there with lanterns, torches, and weapons.
Jesus, knowing everything that was going to happen to him, went out and said to them, "Whom are you looking for?"
They answered him, "Jesus the Nazorean."
He said to them, "I AM."
Judas his betrayer was also with them.
When he said to them, "I AM, "
they turned away and fell to the ground.
So he again asked them,
"Whom are you looking for?"
They said, "Jesus the Nazorean."
Jesus answered,
"I told you that I AM.
So if you are looking for me, let these men go."

This was to fulfill what he had said,
"I have not lost any of those you gave me."
Then Simon Peter, who had a sword, drew it, struck the high priest's slave, and cut off his right ear.
The slave's name was Malchus.
Jesus said to Peter,
"Put your sword into its scabbard.
Shall I not drink the cup that the Father gave me?"

So the band of soldiers, the tribune, and the Jewish guards seized Jesus, bound him, and brought him to Annas first.
He was the father-in-law of Caiaphas,
who was high priest that year.
It was Caiaphas who had counseled the Jews that it was better that one man should die rather than the people.

Simon Peter and another disciple followed Jesus.
Now the other disciple was known to the high priest, and he entered the courtyard of the high priest with Jesus.
But Peter stood at the gate outside.
So the other disciple, the acquaintance of the high priest, went out and spoke to the gatekeeper and brought Peter in.
Then the maid who was the gatekeeper said to Peter,
"You are not one of this man's disciples, are you?"
He said, "I am not."

Now the slaves and the guards were standing around a charcoal fire that they had made, because it was cold, and were warming themselves.
Peter was also standing there keeping warm.

The high priest questioned Jesus about his disciples and about his doctrine.
Jesus answered him,
"I have spoken publicly to the world.
I have always taught in a synagogue or in the temple area where all the Jews gather,
and in secret I have said nothing. Why ask me?
Ask those who heard me what I said to them.
They know what I said."
When he had said this,
one of the temple guards standing there struck Jesus and said,
"Is this the way you answer the high priest?"
Jesus answered him,
"If I have spoken wrongly, testify to the wrong;
but if I have spoken rightly, why do you strike me?"
Then Annas sent him bound to Caiaphas the high priest.

Now Simon Peter was standing there keeping warm.

And they said to him,

“You are not one of his disciples, are you?”

He denied it and said,

“I am not.”

One of the slaves of the high priest,
a relative of the one whose ear Peter had cut off, said,

“Didn’t I see you in the garden with him?”

Again Peter denied it.

And immediately the cock crowed.

Then they brought Jesus from Caiaphas to the praetorium.

It was morning.

And they themselves did not enter the praetorium, in order not to be defiled so that they could eat the Passover.

So Pilate came out to them and said,

“What charge do you bring against this man?”

They answered and said to him,

“If he were not a criminal,

we would not have handed him over to you.”

At this, Pilate said to them,

“Take him yourselves, and judge him according to your law.”

The Jews answered him,

“We do not have the right to execute anyone, “ in order that the word of Jesus might be fulfilled that he said indicating the kind of death he would die.

So Pilate went back into the praetorium and summoned Jesus and said to him,

“Are you the King of the Jews?”

Jesus answered,

“Do you say this on your own or have others told you about me?”

Pilate answered,

“I am not a Jew, am I?”

Your own nation and the chief priests handed you over to me.

What have you done?”

Jesus answered,

“My kingdom does not belong to this world.

If my kingdom did belong to this world,

my attendants would be fighting to keep me from being handed over to the Jews.

But as it is, my kingdom is not here.”

So Pilate said to him,

“Then you are a king?”

Jesus answered,

“You say I am a king.

For this I was born and for this I came into the world,
to testify to the truth.

Everyone who belongs to the truth listens to my voice.”

Pilate said to him, “What is truth?”

When he had said this,

he again went out to the Jews and said to them,

“I find no guilt in him.

But you have a custom that I release one prisoner to you at Passover.

Do you want me to release to you the King of the Jews?”

They cried out again,

“Not this one but Barabbas!”

Now Barabbas was a revolutionary.

Then Pilate took Jesus and had him scourged.

And the soldiers wove a crown out of thorns and placed it on his head, and clothed him in a purple cloak,

and they came to him and said,

“Hail, King of the Jews!”

And they struck him repeatedly.

Once more Pilate went out and said to them,

“Look, I am bringing him out to you,

so that you may know that I find no guilt in him.”

So Jesus came out,

wearing the crown of thorns and the purple cloak.

And he said to them, “Behold, the man!”

When the chief priests and the guards saw him they cried out,

“Crucify him, crucify him!”

Pilate said to them,

“Take him yourselves and crucify him.

I find no guilt in him.”

The Jews answered,

“We have a law, and according to that law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.”

Now when Pilate heard this statement,

he became even more afraid,

and went back into the praetorium and said to Jesus,

“Where are you from?”

Jesus did not answer him.

So Pilate said to him,

“Do you not speak to me?

Do you not know that I have power to release you and I have power to crucify you?”

Jesus answered him,

“You would have no power over me

if it had not been given to you from above.

For this reason the one who handed me over to you

has the greater sin.”

Consequently, Pilate tried to release him; but the Jews cried out,

“If you release him, you are not a Friend of Caesar.
Everyone who makes himself a king opposes Caesar.”

When Pilate heard these words he brought Jesus out and seated him on the judge’s bench in the place called Stone Pavement, in Hebrew, Gabbatha.
It was preparation day for Passover, and it was about noon.

And he said to the Jews,
“Behold, your king!”
They cried out,
“Take him away, take him away! Crucify him!”

Pilate said to them,
“Shall I crucify your king?”
The chief priests answered,
“We have no king but Caesar.”

Then he handed him over to them to be crucified.

So they took Jesus, and, carrying the cross himself, he went out to what is called the Place of the Skull,
in Hebrew, Golgotha.

There they crucified him, and with him two others,
one on either side, with Jesus in the middle.
Pilate also had an inscription written and put on the cross.

It read,
“Jesus the Nazorean, the King of the Jews.”
Now many of the Jews read this inscription, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city;
and it was written in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek.
So the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate,

“Do not write ‘The King of the Jews,’ but that he said, ‘I am the King of the Jews’.”
Pilate answered,
“What I have written, I have written.”

When the soldiers had crucified Jesus,
they took his clothes and divided them into four shares,
a share for each soldier.

They also took his tunic, but the tunic was seamless, woven in one piece from the top down.

So they said to one another, “Let’s not tear it, but cast lots for it to see whose it will be, “ in order that the passage of Scripture might be fulfilled that says:

*They divided my garments among them,
and for my vesture they cast lots.*

This is what the soldiers did.
Standing by the cross of Jesus were his mother and his mother’s sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary of Magdala.

When Jesus saw his mother and the disciple there whom he loved he said to his mother, "Woman, behold, your son."
Then he said to the disciple,
"Behold, your mother."
And from that hour the disciple took her into his home.

After this, aware that everything was now finished,
in order that the Scripture might be fulfilled,
Jesus said, "I thirst."
There was a vessel filled with common wine.
So they put a sponge soaked in wine on a sprig of hyssop and put it up to his mouth.
When Jesus had taken the wine, he said,
"It is finished."
And bowing his head, he handed over the spirit.

Now since it was preparation day, in order that the bodies might not remain on the cross on the sabbath, for the sabbath day of that week was a solemn one,
the Jews asked Pilate that their legs be broken and that they be taken down.
So the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first and then of the other one who was crucified with Jesus.
But when they came to Jesus and saw that he was already dead,
they did not break his legs,
but one soldier thrust his lance into his side,
and immediately blood and water flowed out.
An eyewitness has testified, and his testimony is true;
he knows that he is speaking the truth,
so that you also may come to believe.
For this happened so that the Scripture passage might be fulfilled:
Not a bone of it will be broken.
And again another passage says:
They will look upon him whom they have pierced.

After this, Joseph of Arimathea, secretly a disciple of Jesus for fear of the Jews,
asked Pilate if he could remove the body of Jesus.
And Pilate permitted it.
So he came and took his body.
Nicodemus, the one who had first come to him at night,
also came bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes weighing about one hundred pounds.
They took the body of Jesus and bound it with burial cloths along with the spices, according to the Jewish burial custom.
Now in the place where he had been crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb, in which no one had yet been buried.

So they laid Jesus there because of the Jewish preparation day;
for the tomb was close by.
