Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

Continuing through our survey of the Imitation of Christ, we next come to the concept of having a humble opinion of the self. In this, Thomas of Kempen speaks particularly against pride of having great knowledge. Knowledge is good, but only insofar as it assists in salvation of self and others, and the glorification of God. He warns against the desire to be known as knowledgeable, while neglecting the needs of the soul. Our knowledge is not for its own sake, but proper knowledge should lead us to live lives that are more virtuous and truly assist others in charity.

Unfortunately, the world encourages us to simply seek honor and elevate the self by amassing heaps of worldly knowledge. Thomas rightly points out that those who have better knowledge and understanding are also more liable to judgement if they do not act in accordance with that knowledge. So the person who is even concerned with spiritual and religious knowledge, but does not have the discipline or determination to put that knowledge into practice in his own life is setting himself up for an even harsher judgement. I often run into this as a priest (and find myself tempted in the same ways), when I encounter people who are so concerned about the morality of others or even of society, but can almost use that as a way of keeping from doing an examination of their own conscience. Fixating on the sins of others or the human dysfunction in the society or even the Church is not a substitute for looking critically at yourself or your own actions. This is what Jesus means by His parable of the speck and the wooden beam in the eyes. Thomas' parting thoughts on this matter sum it up well:

"If you wish to learn and appreciate something worthwhile, then love to be unknown and considered as nothing. Truly to know and despise (be suspicious of) self is the best and most perfect counsel. To think of oneself as nothing, and always to think well and highly of others is the best and most perfect wisdom. Wherefore, if you see another sin openly or commit a serious crime, do not consider yourself better, for you do not know how long you can remain good. All men are frail, but you must admit that none is more frail than yourself."

Peace to you,

-Fr. Chris

Thank you from the St. Vincent de Paul Food Pantry. Thanks so much for your recent donation of $1,812.42 to the St. Vincent de Paul Food Pantry! St. John Parish is so supportive of the SVP Food Pantry ministry; for that we are very grateful! We co-ordinate the ministry of feeding the poor here, but you and other donors are really the ones who "feed the poor." In the Easter season readings from the Acts of the Apostles we see the early Christians sharing their resources with those in need. We are very grateful that you are doing likewise as you live your Christian lives day-by-day. Blessings in this Easter springtime season of abundant new life!

Condolences to the family of:

Elaine C. Quigley

spouse of parishioner, Jim Quigley

May her soul and the souls of all the faithful departed rest in peace.

With Deepest Sympathy

Congratulations and God's blessings to:

Kieran Jeremy Becht,

son of David and Constanza Becht

(Recently baptized at St. John the Evangelist)

Next Altar Society dinner will be a Salad Supper provided by members attending. Tuesday, May 2, 2023 at 6 pm. Billie Beckham is the director of Borrowed Hearts Foundation, and she will speak about their foundation assisting foster parents and children. The products that our group could donate that evening would be: Shampoo and conditioner for older children and teens Shampoo, conditioner and body wash in one for younger children. Summer clothes for 7-8 or 10-12. Diapers #5 or pull ups.
