Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

One of the truths of this life is that suffering is a part of the thing. There is no escaping it. However, we always desire and try to escape and avoid this suffering. In short, we want the Resurrection, but not the Cross.

A part of this reality is coming to be at peace inside through self-mastery. This is something that demands that we are honest with ourselves about our sins and shortcomings, and are open to legitimate correction from others who see our sins plainly. We desire to avoid hardship and discomfort, and so we avoid self-correction. When we do this, however, we short-circuit our conversion, which would otherwise lead to inner peace. If we truly want to be peaceful people who are real peacemakers, we have to possess this in ourselves through this conversion. As they say, you cannot give what you do not have. Thomas a Kempis shares this wisdom with us:

“First keep peace with yourself; then you will be able to bring peace to others. A peaceful man does more good than a learned man. Whereas a passionate man turns even good to evil and is quick to believe evil, the peaceful man, being good himself, turns all things to good.

The man who is at perfect ease is never suspicious, but the disturbed and discontented spirit is upset by many a suspicion. He neither rests himself nor permits others to do so. He often says what ought not to be said and leaves undone what ought to be done. He is concerned with the duties of others but neglects his own.

Direct your zeal, therefore, first upon yourself; then you may with justice exercise it upon those about you. You are well versed in coloring your own actions with excuses, which you will not accept from others, though it would be more just to accuse yourself and excuse your brother. If you wish men to bear with you, you must bear with them. Behold, how far you are from true charity and humility which does not know how to be angry with anyone, or to be indignant save only against self!

Some people live at peace with themselves and with their fellow men, but others are never at peace with themselves nor do they bring it to anyone else. These latter are a burden to everyone, but they are more of a burden to themselves. A few, finally, live at peace with themselves and try to restore it to others.

Now, all our peace in this life is found in humbly enduring suffering rather than in being free from it. He who knows best how to suffer will enjoy the greater peace, because he is the conqueror of himself, the master of the world, a friend of Christ, and an heir of heaven.”

Peace to you,
-Fr. Chris

Prayer for our Military:

O Prince of peace, we humbly ask your protection for all our men and women in military service. Give them unflinching courage to defend with honor, dignity and devotion, the rights of all who are imperiled by injustice and evil. Be their rock, their shield, and their stronghold and let them draw their strength from you. Please keep all of our military in your prayers. Veterans and current military need our prayers.
