Preschool

Tara Sudler, Director

We had an awesome four weeks of summer camp at St. Bernard's Preschool! We wrapped up this week with crafts and activities that centered around summer and the great outdoors. We participated in some fun physical activities and games, and everyone had a great time learning about teamwork and sportsmanship. We hope everyone has a safe and fun remainder of the summer! We look forward to seeing those enrolled for school in August!

SAVE THE DATE

Open House // Aug. 16 // 10am-12pm

Parents and students are welcome to stop by to meet their teacher and see their classroom. The first day of school is Aug. 17.

FAMILY STORIES

Stories about the adventures, misadventures, achievements and comical incidents of family members provide a strong sense of connection, identity and inspiration for children. They are important to a child's development.

Children have a natural desire to know their family history, where they come from. The past helps shape who they are and may even provide a possible direction for their lives. Their future builds on their past. Children might even bear a physical resemblance to a distant relative.

Likewise, children enjoy hearing stories about their own past, things that happened to them when they were young. It's not unusual for such stories to be embellished over time, especially by siblings. The telling of these stories often becomes a family ritual.

It's important for parents to write a chronology of their own lives, including the details of their most significant experiences. My experience is that children become most interested in information about the history of their parents later in the children's own lives. I've heard many older adults express dismay that they didn't ask their parents more about the parents' early lives when they had the chance.

"Take care and be earnestly on your guard not to forget the things which your own eyes have seen, nor let them slip from your memory as long as you live, but teach them to your children and to your children's children."
