

Tenth Sunday in Ordinary Time
Sunday, June 10, 2018

Reading 1 Gn 3:9-15

God commanded only one simple thing from Adam and Eve. Eve made a choice; a choice to sin. She could not resist Satan and so she sinned. Adam tried to blame it all on her, but he also made a choice. We make choices every day we are alive. God is always with us. But the devil is also around waiting for us to make his choice. God told Satan there will be hatred as of this moment between people and their families and he will always be separated from anything good.

Responsorial Psalm

We are repeatedly told the Lord gives us mercy and forgives us of sins. We need to understand this in our heart and soul, the Lord forgives us of sin. Live your life free of sin and free of guilt of sin and keep your heart and soul clean.

Reading 2 2 Cor 4:13-5:1

God gave us His Son, Jesus, to make our place in heaven. We get older, we make mistakes. We are sad or ill, but all this means nothing to the eternal life we will hopefully be blessed to have when we die and are lifted up to heaven forever.

Gospel Mk 3:20-35

Jesus came home and his disciples and relatives were there. Possibly his talk to them in parable phrases confused them, or embarrassed them, as they did not understand. A household that is spiritually divided will have a difficult time withstanding an attack from Satan. Jesus is stronger than Satan. Jesus speaks about family “we are all brothers and sisters and mothers and fathers if we do the will of God.” The familial loyalty is to the word of God.

Eileen White