

Haiti - House #118 Clelie & Meneland Lamy

Pictured in the "Before" photo is (was) the current home of Meneland and Clelie Lamy. (He is not in the "before" picture because he went to Jérémie that day to visit one of his daughters). He and this wife Clelie are in their eighties. She had a stroke a number of years ago however, she is still taking care of her goats and chickens. He continues to do a little farming to survive (along with his wife and some of their grand children living with them). They have nine children and five grand children. The photo of where they are living can tell you more about their terrible situation, especially when it rains. Thank you so much to everyone who has helped to improve their living condition.
