

Haiti-house 153 The Johnson Laguerre Family

Johnson LAGUERRE and Ketna ANDRE live with their five children and one grand son. In May 2019, upon receiving the news that they would receive a new home and be out of the miserable circumstances in which they found themselves, Ketna was expecting another child. She works as a housekeeper in Jeremie and also does farming, raising animals with her husband, Johnson, who works regularly for HMI as a carpenter. They are a very generous couple who work very hard to take care of their large and growing family. Though Johnson is not the biological father of most of the children whom her wife had from a previous relation, he cares for them as his own. Given the terrible and pitiful conditions in which they are living now as shown in the "before" picture, the selection committee thought it was time to help them move to another and more decent place in order to experience a new and better of life. They send their love and deep appreciation to all who in any way helped this dream become a reality.
