

Haiti - House #157 Glaubert Appollon

At first glance at the "Before" picture, one may wonder why Jean Glaubert Appolon and his family needed a home. What you see pictured is his M-I-L's home where they have been living since the house in which they were living in Jeremie was destroyed. Glaubert (as he is called) and his wife Maniana Pierre Louis are both teachers at the HMI St. Brigitte school in Numero Deux, Haiti. Glaubert has taught there since the school was founded by HMI. He always has been one of the most dedicated and popular teachers, loved by all the kids. He and his wife are very proud of their work at the school. Because of their dedication and need for a place they could call home where they could regain the family intimacy and have a better environment to raise their two children (who by the way do very well in school), the selection committee decided to bless the Glaubert Appollon family with a new home in July 2019. They send their love and heartfelt thanks to all who have brought about this miraculous blessing in their lives.
