

House # 29 - Marco House

As you can see by the “before” pictures, it was a pitiful place that was falling down around the family existing in it. It is the house of a young man by the name of Marko and his mom who along with a few other relatives live here. Marko and his mom are some of the refugee population from the earthquake of 2010. The father is dead so life is extremely difficult. Marko has worked for HMI at our farm some as well as helping us whenever we have a mission group in Haiti. He is going to school and trying to help support the family. This new home will be a tremendous boost to his ego and his self-esteem as well as affording all the practical improvements that it will bring to his family’s health and well-being. Thanks for helping out. All that you do has made such a huge difference.
