

Mathurin House

For a number of years we would pass Mr. Mathurin “the blind man” as we made our way from one project to the other and would see him sitting on a log at the opening of his hut knowing that he was literally living in mud. We were able to develop a coalition of interested people who raised the funds to build a new house for him and finally get him out of the squalor. It is a great joy to see his health improve and notice that he has even gained a little weight. He makes everyone take their shoes off before entering his house that is always immaculately cleaned by his sister and friends.
