

Platon Well

Platon is a community within Jeremie itself. There are very few fountains currently working in Jeremie so wells strategically placed are critical and essential for people. This project was done in conjunction with Impact 195 of Rock University. Because of some problems with the initial well and the structure that was built around it, a second well was drilled in order to maximize the water production for the area.

