

Well #51 – Decade

Decade (Pronounced “Day Kah Day”) is a small community about twenty minutes upriver from Jeremie. There has been a number of cholera cases there because of the lack of a good potable water source. Our drill team was able to drill a well there that tested negative for cholera and was of good taste and quality. When the water flowed from the borehole, the people began exclaiming, “No more cholera because we don’t have to drink river water anymore!” Thanks to all who have made this possible through your prayerful support.
