“Jesus speaks in the silence of the mystery of the Eucharist and reminds us each time that following him means going out of ourselves and making our lives not something we ‘possess,’ but a gift to him and to others.”

~POPE FRANCIS (May 2013)
Dear Friends:

Among the many undeserved blessings of my priestly life has been the opportunity to travel to places that I would not ever otherwise have seen. One of those places is the city of San Cristobal de las Casas in the state of Chiapas in the southernmost part of Mexico. I’ve been there three times over the past fifteen years. The city itself is something of a tourist destination, mostly for visitors from Europe. It has a rather classic Spanish-looking charm. But it only takes a drive of a few minutes out of town to be amid the mountainside communities of the native Mayan Indians, who generally live in squalor and who are generally Catholic. They cling to their faith in spite of their conditions of life (or perhaps because of them?). San Cristobol (“St. Christopher”) takes its name from the first Catholic bishop of the place, whose given name actually was Bartolome (Bartholemew). He was a Dominican friar who came from Spain in the early Sixteenth Century and, unlike so many other missionaries from Spain and Portugal who thought that “converting” the natives meant turning them into European clones and enslaving them, he came, eventually, to completely oppose that idea. He is remembered there as the “Protector of the Indians.” He came to be, albeit very gradually, a resolute opponent of slavery of any kind, some three hundred years before the United States came to that conclusion, because unlike so many of the missionaries, he knew that native people there (a.k.a. “las indiginas”) were one hundred percent human beings. He was a first pioneer for the concept of universal human rights, even though he was made to suffer greatly for that, including at the hands of his own church.

In much more recent times the beloved hero of Chiapas was Bishop Samuel Ruiz, who served in that office for forty years until 1999 and who died just six years ago. He too was a tireless defender of the native people, overwhelmingly Catholic, for whom he was responsible. And he too suffered for that, also at the hands of his own church. He was often regarded with great suspicion in Rome because his solution to the priest shortage in his vast diocese was to ordain lots of permanent deacon-catechists and to send them into the hills to be the people’s de-facto pastors. The result was that he was denied permission to ordain any more deacons. I’m sorry he didn’t live to see the days of Pope Francis, who would have been very much more benevolent toward Bishop Ruiz. Some say that he may be on the track to sainthood some day.

One of the reasons that I’ve had Chiapas on my mind these days is that there’s been much political bluster in the U.S. recently about whether the NAFTA trade agreement, now 25 years old, has been a raw deal for our country. I don’t know. But I do know it has, in many cases, been an extremely raw deal for coffee farmers in Mexico. NAFTA has made it possible for people to buy U.S.-produced coffee in Chiapas for cheaper than they can produce it in their own back yards, thus sending the farmers off the land and into sweat shops as the only way to earn a living for their families. But where are the public voices who care about coffee farmers in Mexico, or anybody in Mexico for that matter? Where are the voices that say “America First” is not Christian? Maybe as Catholics, those voices should be ours?

Fr. Mike Byron

Parking Lot Replacement
In an ongoing effort to stay on top of critical capital repair and replacement, we must replace the pavement in the parking lot that runs along 3rd Street, from Brioschi hall all the way down to the school building. If you use this lot now, you have experienced many pot holes and lots of crumbling pavement. This project will require the removal and replacement of 3-4” of pavement and cost $34,000. Every parish household is asked to consider giving an exceptional gift (above and beyond your Sunday stewardship) to help us raise the needed goal to replace this parking lot by the time we celebrate our All-School Reunion and SummerFest in August. Thanks to the generous response of the 200 families that attended the Friends & Family Gala a couple weeks ago, we have already raised $18,365 towards our goal. Please help us reach our goal by donating this week. Indicate “Parking Lot Replacement” on the memo line of your check and return to the parish or drop it in the collection basket. Thanks so much for your help.

Recognizing Christ

Today’s Readings: Acts 2:14, 22–33; Psalm 16:1–2, 5, 7–8, 9–10, 11; 1 Peter 1:17–21; Luke 24:13–35. After encountering a stranger, two disciples have a conversion of heart. As impossible as that may seem to be on the surface, the Gospel today is full of the newly possible. Not recognizing the Risen Christ is the first impossibility. Most of us are quick to judge by appearances. Who is this stranger? Why is this person whom I do not know approaching me? If Christ were to come to me today, what would he look like? That is the question we must ask if we are to believe that Christ is alive and present in the world.

The second impossibility is the topic of conversation. Purposefully fleeing Jerusalem, two disciples are committed to hiking to Emmaus, just beyond the reach of Jerusalem’s influence. Yet the topic begins with them laying out their concerns to this stranger: the disbelief that Jesus, one of their own, has been killed and, then even more unbelievable, perhaps risen from the dead. It is all too confusing. Yet this stranger, chiding them for their foolishness, walks the distance with them, teaching them and revealing hidden truths to them. Later they confess that their hearts were burning within them on the road.

However, the final action—the sacramental moment for the two—is Jesus taking bread, blessing it, breaking it, and sharing it with them. This is the moment of revelation for them: knowing Jesus through the breaking of the bread and all that that implies. We, too, find our way to moments of knowing Jesus: in the least of the strangers we encounter, in others opening up the meaning of Scripture and faith for us, and in the blessing and breaking of bread.

Blessed, Broken, Shared

Generous God, you who have given your people so many blessings:
who saved them from a life of slavery in Egypt,
and who blessed them with a land flowing with milk and honey;
You walked with your disciples on the paths they chose,
and blessed them with bread and fish;
Bless us this day as we yearn to find you along the way,
and strive to know you in strangers and Scripture,
in shared meals and broken bread.
May our hearts burn with your love and may our generous spirits be unleashed for others who also seek to know you.
We ask this through your Son and our Lord,
who lives and reigns with you in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, for ever and ever. Amen.
Monday, May 1

See the Glory of God

We hear in today’s Gospel, “This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he has sent.” During this Easter Time, you might reflect the joy of your belief in your surroundings. Water your flowers and open the blinds! Let in the sunlight, lighten your spaces where you live and work. How is the Easter season celebrated visually in your parish, in your home, in your life? It is not enough to sing alleluia, although it is necessary. Does your face reflect the joy of the season?

Tuesday, May 2

St. Athanasius

When the Apostles look for a sign, they tell Jesus of the manna that was sent to their ancestors in the desert. Jesus tells them, “I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me will never be hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty.” During this Easter season, we have time to take these words to heart. How do we take in and share the bread of life that we are given in Christ? Today’s Readings: Acts 7:51—8:1a; Psalm 31:3cd–4, 6 and 7b and 8a, 17 and 21ab; John 6:30–35.

Wednesday, May 3

Sts. Philip and James, Apostles

In the middle of the Easter season, it is appropriate to remember the Twelve, who were witnesses of Jesus’ years of ministry, as well as his Passion, Death, and Resurrection. From their witness, they proclaimed to their death the meaning of the Paschal Mystery. The Apostles’ lives are both a reminder and an invitation for us to continue to live and witness to that same mystery. Today’s Readings: 1 Corinthians 15:1–8; Psalm 19:2–3, 4–5; John 14:6–14.

Thursday, May 4

Baptism Offered for All

When Philip baptizes the eunuch in today’s passage from the Acts of the Apostles, we know that this adds meaning to the universality of Baptism in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. The Sacrament of Baptism continues to root all Christians in the fullness of life in the Trinity. As you make the Sign of the Cross today, call to mind all the baptized, who share in your faith and calling. Today’s Readings: Acts 8:26–40; Psalm 66:8–9, 16–17, 20; John 6:44–51.

Friday, May 5

Sharing in the Paschal Mystery

The Eucharist proclaims a sharing in Christ’s Body and Blood, and also a sharing in Christ’s Death and Resurrection. When we partake of the Eucharist, we are gaining life everlasting. It is only when we fully enter into the mystery of Christ, as did Paul in today’s First Reading, that we can be nourished enough to go out into the world and “proclaim Jesus.” Today’s Readings: Acts 9:1–20; Psalm 117:1bc, 2; John 6:52–59.

Saturday, May 6

Everlasting Life

The belief that Jesus is the “Holy One of God,” prompts Peter to proclaim not only his belief and loyalty to Jesus. Peter is all in. He states that he could not turn his back on Jesus, since he is God. To whom else could he possibly turn? It is only through Jesus that we have the holiness of God revealed completely. He has the words of everlasting life. Today’s Readings: Acts 9:31–42; Psalm 116:12–13, 14–15, 16–17; John 6:60–69.
