JANUARY 14, 2024 SECOND SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Dear friends,

By now you should have received your invitation to join us for our Super Sunday, Day of Celebration on Sunday, February 11. We're going to begin our day with a special mass of thanksgiving at 9 am. (No mass at 8 or 10:30). After Mass we are inviting you to join us in the school gym for an informal reception followed by a catered lunch at 11 am Your only job is to come, enjoy some good food and good company, and join us in giving thanks for all the work that has happened in rebuilding our church.

This is a no-charge affair and we hope to have as many parishioners attending as possible. In order to have enough food for everyone, we need to get a count to our caterer to ensure we have enough food for everyone. We need to hear from you by January 20th. So, fill out the card and get it back to us. I look forward to celebrating with you.

This week we begin the Liturgical season of Ordinary Time. During these weeks we will be hearing Jesus teach us about what it means to a disciple. Today we encounter the young Samuel who is eager to follow the Lord. "Here I am, you called me." That is sentiment that lies in the heart of most people. I guess that is why one of the most popular songs that hear in church is the Dan Shutte song: Here I am Lord. We want to do follow the way of the Lord. We want to say yes as Mary did. But Samuel gets it a bit wrong at first. He think it is the temple preist Eli who is calling him. Eli, as a wise elder, begins to understand that it is the Lord who is calling the young Samuel. He helps him to understand what is stirring in his heart and he tells him to respond "Speak Lord, for your servant is listening."

In the gospel we encounter two of the disciples who are intrigued by Jesus. They ask him, "Where are you staying." They really weren't asking for an address as if they might come over after dinner and visit. What they were really asking is "What makes you do what you do and act the way you act." They saw something in Jesus.

There hearts were touched by what he said and the way he acted and they wanted to know more. And Jesus' response? "Come and see," he tells them. And they came to "stay" with him. And because they have found someone that speaks truth to them, they quickly go to their friends to share their good news. They go to Peter and tell him, "We have found the Messiah. They too have been searching for something and someone to give meaning to their life. And they come to "stay" with Jesus as well.

This is really a description of our faith journey. Our hearts need to be touched even broken open. Then we need the courage to ask "what will give meaning to my life now?" And when we discover something or someone who speaks to this question, we naturally want to go to the people who are important to us and share with them what makes sense to us. And that is the beginning of evangelization. Leaning into the journey of life

THE CHANCE OF HUMMING

A man standing
on two logs in a river
might do all right floating
with the current while humming in the now.

Though if one log
is tied to a camel,
who is also heading
south along the bank
at the same pace
all could still be well
with the world
unless the camel thinks
he forgot something
and, abruptly turns upstream,
then uo-oh.

Most minds do not live in the present and
can stick to a reasonable plan;
most minds abruptly turn
and undermine the chance of humming.

IT'S FISH FRY TIME FRIDAYS, FEBRUARY 23 & MARCH 8

SERVING 5-7 PM DRIVE THRU ONLY

We'll need help prepar- ing all the ingredients for the potato salad and slaw, (tentative dates Wednesdays, Feb. 21 and March 6) as well as helping on the days of the fish fry.

In this year of Eucharistic Renewal, we continue reading Pope Francis's teaching letter (encyclical) entitled Laudato Si'—Caring for Our Common Home
CIVIC AND POLITICAL LOVE

Caring for nature is part of a lifestyle that implies the ability to live together and communion. Jesus reminded us that we have God as our common Father and that this makes us brothers and sister. Learning to love one another can only be free, it can never be a reward for what another accomplishes, nor an advance for what we hope he will do. This is why it is possible to love enemies. This same gratuitousness leads us to love and accept the wind, the sun or the clouds, although they do not submit to our control. For this we can speak of a universal fraternity.

We need to feel once again that we need each other, that we have a responsibility towards others and towards the world, that it is worthwhile to be good and honest. For too long we have been in moral degradation, making fun of ethics, goodness, faith, honesty. The time has come to recognize that this cheerful superficiality has been of little use to us. This destruction of every foundation of social life ends up pitting us against each other to defend our interests, provokes the emergence of new forms of violence and cruelty and prevents the development of a true culture of care for the environment.

The example of St. Therese of Lisieux invites us to practice the little way of love, not to miss the opportunity for a kind word, a smile, any small gesture that sows peace and friendship. An integral ecology is also made up of simple daily gestures in which we break the logic of violence, exploitation, selfishness. Conversely, the world of exasperated consumption is at the same time the world of the mistreatment of life in all its forms.

Love, full of small gestures of mutual care, is also civil and political, and is manifested in all actions that seek to build a better world. Love for society and commitment to the common good are an eminent form of charity, which concerns not only relations between individuals, but also "macro-relations, social, economic, political relations".

For this reason the Church has proposed to the world the ideal of a "civilization of love". Social love is the key to authentic development: "To make society more human, more worthy of the person, it is necessary to re-evaluate love in social life - at the political, economic, cultural level - making it the constant norm and supreme action.

In this context, together with the importance of small daily gestures, social love pushes us to think of great strategies that effectively stop environmental degradation and encourage a culture of care that permeates the whole of society. When someone recognizes God's vocation to intervene together with others in these social dynamics, he must remember that this is part of his spirituality, that it is an exercise of charity, and that in this way it matures and becomes sanctified.

Not everyone is called to work directly in politics, but an innumerable variety of associations flourish within society that intervene in favor of the common good, defending the natural and urban environment. For example, they care about a public place (a building, a fountain, an abandoned monument, a landscape, a square), to protect, restore, improve or beautify something that belongs to everyone. Around them, bonds develop or recover and a new local social fabric arises. Thus a community frees itself from consumerist indifference.

This also means cultivating a common identity, a history that is preserved and transmitted. In this way we take care of the world and the quality of life of the poorest, with a sense of solidarity which is at the same time awareness of living in a common home that God has entrusted to us. These community actions, when they express self-giving love, can turn into intense spiritual experiences.
