NOVEMBER 5, 2023 THE THIRTY-FIRST SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Dear friends,

We've been talking the last few weeks about why it is so hard for people to "hear" and "see" with the heart and mind of Jesus, even though we say we really want to do this. We talked about how for most of us, we go through life unaware. Being in a coma is how some people have put it. And when we "see" and "hear" we often are surprised. "I didn't know that." But once we start to see and hear, then we begin to notice lots of things we didn't notice. Often this means becoming aware of lots of pain and suffering. And this is often overwhelming for us. It's too much to bear. It feels messy and uninviting. That is why some folks have referred to this stage as "puke."

What do we do? Very often, people just shut their eyes and close their ears. "I don't want to know anything more." And we sort of drift right back into that "coma" stage. But we can have other responses as well. In our culture, we like to make things better. So often, in our work with our sister parish in Haiti, we have people who want to fix things—a new water filter system, a new building, putting a roof on a church, setting up a solar system. We get excited about this. It feels like we are "doing" something to make things better. To be clear, there is something good about these efforts. They make a difference in people's lives and that is a very good thing.

But, often times, the efforts we make, seem so little and the difficulties faced so big. After we have "done" a few projects, you find people saying, "well are things getting better." Very often, the people who have been on mission trips, put lots of time and effort into projects and then become discouraged because they see little evidence that things are getting better.

The problem is that we think the things to "see" and "hear" are all external. And we think transformation is about changing the way we think and the things we see. Here is an example. For much of our history, our military forces were segregated. Then, in 1948, President Truman signed an executive order banning segregation in the military. Now that might have changed things externally, but changing the hearts of people who served in the military was another thing. That is still an ongoing process.

The same thing happens in our lives. Being able to "see" and "hear" means that we have to change more than just some external things in our life. It requires an internal change in our hearts. That's really what formation is all about. So, when we think about the example of our work in Haiti, we move from asking "what can I do to make things better in Haiti," to asking "why is there so much poverty in Haiti to begin with? And, if we have the courage, we might even ask, "does my lifestyle and my level of consuming things, impact how other people live?" That is a very hard question to wrestle with. Pope Paul VI often said that we must strive to live simple, so that others may simple live. Pope Francis, spoke about the same thing when he talked about how important it is for us to care for God's creation. In order for this to happen, he talked about needing an "ecological conversion." That's more than just saving a few aluminum cans. It's relooking at our whole lives and all the things we do. What we do with our time and money all comes into play here.

It takes courage to do this. Not everyone wants to do this. That's why we hear Jesus say, "try to enter through the narrow gate. I tell you many will try but few will succeed." We can relate to what the disciples said to Jesus. "What you ask is hard. Lord, who can do it." But we find hope in Jesus's response to the disciples. "For people alone, it is impossible, but with God all things are possible."

Leaning into the journey of life

CARING FOR OUR COMMON HOME

In this year of Eucharistic Renewal, we continue reading Pope Francis's teaching letter (encyclical) entitled Laudato Si—Caring for Our Common Home

However, it is not enough for just individuals to work to solve a situation as complex as the one facing the world today. Individuals can easily get overwhelmed at the task ahead of us and end up succumbing to a consumerism without ethics and without social and environmental sense. Social problems are answered with community networks, not with the mere sum of individual goods.

The needs of this work will be so immense that the possibilities of individual initiatives and the cooperation of individuals, individually trained, will not be able to respond to them. A union of forces and a unity of contributions will be necessary. The ecological conversion that is required to create a dynamism of lasting change is also a community conversion. This conversion involves various attitudes which are combined to activate generous care full of tenderness. In the first place it implies, a recognition of the world as a gift received from the love of the Father, which causes, as a consequence, free dispositions of renunciation and generous gestures even if no one sees or recognizes them. It also implies loving awareness of not being separated from other creatures, but of forming a stupendous universal communion with the other beings of the universe.

For the believer, the world does not contemplate itself from without but from within, recognizing the bonds with which the Father has united us to all beings. Furthermore, by increasing the peculiar abilities that God has given to each believer, ecological conversion leads him to develop his creativity and enthusiasm, in order to resolve the tragedies of the world, offering himself to God "as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable" (Rom 12: 1). He does not interpret his superiority as a motive for personal glory or irresponsible domination, but as a different capacity which in turn imposes on him a grave responsibility that derives from his faith.

REBUILDING OUR CHURCH UPDATE

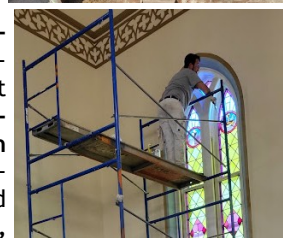

The majority of the work of installing a new roof, tuck pointing and sealing of the bricks has been completed. Special thanks to Vernie Gries and Paul Stewart for reseeding the lawn west of the church. The exterior aluminum storm windows have all been painted. We are in the process of installing some new storm windows coverings on the north side of the church windows. And, if you look close, you can see that St. Joseph now has a staff in his hand, thanks to the efforts of Gary Fehrenbacher. And you can see the wording of the cornerstone just below the statue of St. Joseph (It reads: "To the honor and glory of God under the patronage of St. Joseph.")

We still are waiting for the insulation above the church ceiling to be put in. We've ordered the new aluminum louvers in the church steeple. It looks like these won't get installed until next spring. We're also waiting for the lightening protection to be reinstalled as well as reguiling the cross on the top of the steeple. Because that requires cranes and lifts to complete and since we are getting into colder weather, this project may take a while to complete.

We are pretty close to having all the interior painting of the church complete. Special thanks to Dan Voelker, Fred Gries, and Bob and Mary Kay Fehrenbacher for caulking the wainscoting. It took longer than we thought but the end result is great. Dennis Nie-meier, Brian Denning, Mike Loehrlein and Bob Fehrenbacher took all the covers off the heating vents and cleaned them as well. Thanks to Jane Scheller, Dan Voelker and Mary Kay Fehrenbacher for removing all the stuff from the sacristy closets so they could all be painted. We think all the interior church painting should be done by the end of this week.

Special thanks to all the folks who helped clean the balcony of the church: Peter, Jodi, Finley, Piper and Lilly Fehrenbacher, Trent & Melanie Denning, Lori and Briley Jones, Autumn, Keelie and Mia Link, Natalie, Sadie, Allie and Claire Kassenbrock. It was a dirty mess, but it looks great now.

Zach and Luke Spaetti and the their crews completed the brick work on the west entrance of the church. The next step will be to pour the concrete for the steps and handicapped ramp. We're hopeful that this will be done in the next few weeks. We are also working on the installing the new door for the west entrance.

The next big thing is installing the carpet. We're hoping to get that started in a few weeks. However, one of the two kinds of carpet that we are installing is still stuck in transit somewhere between here and Turkey. Until it arrives, we'll try to do all that we can with the installation of the other carpet.
