DECEMBER 3, 2023 THE FIRST SUNDAY OF ADVENT

Dear friends,

And so once again we begin the season of Advent. We hear familiar words: "stay awake, prepare the way of the Lord." For many people, motivated by very good intentions, Advent is a time to prepare for the birth of Jesus. Of course, this sounds good, even admirable. But what does that mean? Are we somehow preparing for the physical birth of Jesus just as it happened some 2000 years ago? Surely there has to be more to it than just trying to recreate an historical event. If we do not move beyond this notion, than I fear we risk proclaiming something that seems, at best, sentimentality, and, at worse, another thing that gets dismissed by most people as just another example of how the church does not have anything to say of significance to the world.

But, as a church, as people who are trying to be disciples of Jesus, we do have something of great significance to offer to the world. The world is a tough place these days. Much of it is at war: bloodletting flows, systems are collapsing, governments are dysfunctional, the economy serves primarily the rich, institutions are in shambles, poverty runs rampant, violence is a way of life, disregard for human life prevails, absence of human dignity looms, destruction of the natural world increases, pessimism and powerlessness are evidenced everywhere, the rise of tyrants is ripe, and....you can well continue the litany of lamentations.

Into this world we come to say "stay awake, be prepared, the Lord is present." And how do we do this? We do it by allowing Jesus to be born in our hearts, right here, right now, amidst all the stuff that is happening around us. We proclaim the words we hear in the Gospel of John, "the light came into the world and the darkness did not overcome it." And we hear further that "the darkness that surrounds us, will lead us to giving testimony." (John 1:5).

So we give testimony. We do it by showing up everyday. We do it by refusing to be led down the road of pessimism and negativity. We do it by facing what is in front of us and not running away from it. How does this happen? I think it happens when we choose to do the next thing in front of us and do it with all the love and patience we can muster. The next thing might just be going to work and trying to be agreeable to all the folks around us, even those that can drive us crazy. It may even be just the courage to say, I am going to go to work even though much of me would rather be anyplace than this. Or it may be going to school and attending another class that doesn't hold much interest for us, or has a teacher that does not inspire us. It may just be a willingness to do the next household chore—another load of laundry or another meal to fix, or another bathroom to be cleaned.

And the, maybe, there are those rare moments when our simple "hello," or gesture of kindness makes all the difference in another person's life. By acknowledging them and giving witness to all that is happening in their lives, we are reminding them that they are beloved by God. In simple gestures like this we are reminding them that the light that comes into the world is not overcome by the darkness and so have "prepared the way of the Lord."

Showing up in life and doing the next thing may not seem like a lot, but when those simple acts are done with all the love and patience we can muster, it's effects go far beyond us. Our willingness to engage in this way of being, is the way we bring a little bit of peace and compassion to our world.

We do this most effectively when we let go of the need to be in charge and to want things to work out according to our plans and desire. It's like we are at our best being life for the world when we don't even know that we are doing it. But what a gift we give to the world!

Leaning into the journey of life

PEACE IS THIS MOMENT WITHOUT JUDGEMENT

Do you think that peace requires an end to war?

Or tigers eating only vegetables?

Does peace require an absence from your boss, your spouse, yourself?

Do you think that peace will come from some other place than here?

Some other time than now?

In some other heart than yours?

Peace is this moment without judgment.

That is all. This moment in the Heart-space where everything that is, is welcome.

Peace is this moment without thinking that it should be some other way,
that you should feel some other thing that your life should unfold
according to your plans.

Peace is this moment without judgment,
this moment in the Heart-space where everything that is, is welcome

Dorothy Hunt

CARING FOR OUR COMMON HOME

In this year of Eucharistic Renewal, we continue reading Pope Francis's teaching letter (encyclical) entitled Laudato Si'—Caring for Our Common Home

CIVIL AND POLITICAL LOVE

Caring for nature is part of a lifestyle that implies the ability to live together and communion. Jesus reminded us that we have God as our common Father and that this makes us brothers. Brotherly love can only be free, it can never be a reward for what another accomplishes, nor an advance for what we hope he will do. This is why it is possible to love enemies. This same gratuitousness leads us to love and accept the wind, the sun or the clouds, although they do not submit to our control. For this we can speak of a universal fraternity.

We need to feel once again that we need each other, that we have a responsibility towards others and towards the world, that it is worthwhile to be good and honest. For too long we have been in moral degradation, making fun of ethics, goodness, faith, honesty, and the time has come to recognize that this cheerful superficiality has been of little use to us. This destruction of every foundation of social life ends up pitting us against each other to defend our interests, provokes the emergence of new forms of violence and cruelty and prevents the development of a true culture of care for the environment.

The example of St. Therese of Lisieux invites us to practice the little way of love, not to miss the opportunity for a kind word, a smile, any small gesture that sows peace and friendship. An integral ecology is also made up of simple daily gestures in which we break the logic of violence, exploitation, selfishness. Conversely, the world of exasperated consumption is at the same time the world of the mistreatment of life in all its forms.

Love, full of small gestures of mutual care, is also civil and political, and is manifested in all actions that seek to build a better world. Love for society and commitment to the common good are an eminent form of charity, which concerns not only relations between individuals, but also macro-relations, social, economic, political relations.

For this reason the Church has proposed to the world the ideal of a "civilization of love". Social love is the key to authentic development: To make society more human, more worthy of the person, it is necessary to re-evaluate love in social life - at the political, economic, cultural level - making it the constant norm and supreme action.

Social love pushes us to think of great strategies that effectively stop environmental degradation and encourage a culture of care that permeates the whole of society. TO BE CONTINUED

Each year we have invited people to remember their loved ones at CHRISTMAS FLOWER MEMORIALS

Christmas and use the money from these donations to buy the flowers for Christmas. This year, with all the work that we are doing to rebuild our church, things are a bit different. We are not planning to have any special decorations for Christmas, but we still wanted to give people the chance to remember their loved ones at Christmas.

So, send the name or names of people you want to remember to the parish office by Dec. 18. The names will be printed in the Christmas bulletin. There is no need to send any money, since we are not buying flowers this year.
