APRIL 16, 2023 SECOND SUNDAY OF EASTER

Dear friends,

Now that our Easter Day celebrations are over, it's back to work. At least that is the way it seems to so many people. But we don't just celebrate the resurrection of Jesus on one day. If Easter was all about what Jesus did, I guess this would make sense. But Easter is really about us and how we live our life every day. And this involves living our Paschal Mystery every day in our life.

Now those are fancy words, but what we are really talking about is how the whole mystery of life and death plays out in our lives every day. Every day we agree to show up to all that is happening in our lives. In these vents there are going to be lots of times we will be called upon to let go and to forgive—forgiving life for not going the way we want it to go; forgiving people for not being the way we wanted them to be or hoped they would be; forgiving ourselves for not being the way we want to be. These kind of "deaths" are inevitable—but so is resurrection. While these "dyings" will intrude upon our lives, we can be awake and watchful for the resurrections as well, for the creative ways that new life streams into our lives even in the midst of death.

Here's how the theologian Howard Thurman described it. It is ever a new thing, a glad surprise, the stirring of life at the end of winter. One day there seems to be no sign of life and then almost overnight, swelling buds, delicate blooms, blades of grass, bugs, insects—an entire world of newness everywhere. It is the glad surprise at the end of winter. Often the same experience comes at the end of a long tunnel of tragedy and tribulation. It is as if a person stumbling in the darkness, having lost their way, finds that the spot at which they fall is the foot of a stairway that leads from darkness into light. Such is the glad surprise. This is what Easter means in the experience of the [human] race. This is the resurrection! It is the announcement that life cannot ultimately be conquered by death, ... that there is strength added when the labors increase, that multiplied peace matches multiplied trials, that life is bottomed by the glad surprise. Take courage, therefore: When we have exhausted our store of endurance, When our strength has failed ere the day is half done, When we reach the end of our hoarded resources, Our Father's full giving is only begun.

Along the way, we will all be like the Apostle Thomas that we read about in the gospel today. He's often called "the doubting Thomas," as if his "doubting" was some kind of weakness. Actually, doubt is very much a part of our faith journey. The opposite of faith is not doubt but certitude. Doubt, on the other hand, helps us stay with the challenging of just showing up each day and trying to understand where God is and what God is asking of us. And it is very much at the heart of learning how to forgive and to recognize the "resurrections" in our life. The prayer printed below, which was composed by the Trappist Monk, Fr. Thomas Merton, says it well. I call it "A doubter's prayer!" I'm sure we can all relate to this at one time or another.

Leaning into the journey of life

Fr. Gene Schroeder

P.S. Every week there are a lot of things that people take care of in our parish. Most of them are simple things that often go unnoticed. But there are essential to the smooth operation of our parish life. I think especially of the countless number of volunteers who help in school each week helping to supervise lunch duty, helping in the parish office or serving as one of the coaches for our many athletic teams. Then there are the folks who come to mow the grass each week. Randy Tenbarger and Jerry Happe are coordinating the scheduling of our mowing crews and making sure all of our mowing equipment is in good shape. A special thanks to the folks who stepped up these past few weeks to add their names to our mowing crews. Special thanks to Todd Wingert for using his expertise to help keep our water treatment plant and sand filter in good shape. Thanks as well for the folks who have come to help set up for mass each weekend.

A DOUBTER'S PRAYER

My Lord God, I have no idea where I am going.

I do not see the road ahead of me.

I cannot know for certain where it will end.

Nor do I really know myself,
and the fact that I think

I am following your will does not mean that I am actually doing so.

But I believe that the desire to please you
does in fact, please you.

And I hope I have that desire
in all that I am doing.

I hope that I will never do anything
apart from that desire.

And I know that if I do this,
you will lead me by the right road,
though I may know nothing about it.

Therefore will I trust you always,
though I may seem to be lost
and in the shadow of death.

I will not fear, for you are ever with me,
and you will never leave me to face my perils
alone. Amen. ----Thomas Merton

CARING FOR OUR COMMON HOME

In this year of Eucharistic Renewal, we continue reading Pope Francis's teaching letter (encyclical) entitled Laudato Si'—Caring for Our Common Home and seeing the real presence of God in all things.

It should be remembered that the beginning of scientific developments on transgenic cereals was the observation of bacteria that naturally and spontaneously produced a change in the genome of a plant. However, in nature these processes have a slow pace, which is not comparable to the speed imposed by current technological advances, even when these advances are based on a scientific development of centuries.

Although we do not have definitive evidence about the harm that GM grains could cause to humans, and in some regions their use has resulted in economic growth that has helped solve some problems, there are significant difficulties that should not be minimized.

In many areas, following the introduction of these crops, there is a concentration of productive land in the hands of a few, due to the "progressive disappearance of small producers, who, as a result of the loss of cultivated land, were forced to withdraw from direct production. The most fragile of these become precarious workers and many agricultural workers end up migrating to miserable urban settlements.

The expansion of these crops destroys the complex web of ecosystems, decreases diversity in production and affects the present or the future of regional economies. In several countries there is a trend towards the development of oligopolies in the production of seeds and other products necessary for cultivation, and the dependence is aggravated if we consider the production of sterile seeds, which would end up forcing farmers to buy them from producing companies.

Undoubtedly there is a need for constant attention, which leads to consider all the ethical aspects involved. To this end, it is necessary to ensure a scientific and social debate that is responsible and broad, able to consider all the information available and to call things by their name. Sometimes the complete information is not put on the table, but it is selected according to one's own interests, be they political, economic or ideological.

This makes it difficult to formulate a balanced and prudent judgment on the various issues, bearing in mind all the variables involved. It is necessary to have places for debate in which all those who in some way could be directly or indirectly involved (farmers, consumers, authorities, scientists, seed producers, populations close to the treated fields and others) can expose their problems or access extensive and reliable information to take decisions oriented to the present and future common good. That of GMOs is a complex issue that needs to be addressed with a comprehensive look at all its aspects, and this would require at least a greater effort to finance various lines of autonomous and interdisciplinary research that could bring new light.

On the other hand, it is worrying that some ecological movements defend the integrity of the environment, and rightly claim limits on scientific research, while sometimes failing to apply these same principles to human life. It is often justified that all boundaries are exceeded when experimenting with live human embryos. It is forgotten that the inalienable value of a human being goes far beyond the degree of his development. Similarly, when technology does not recognize the great ethical principles, it ends up considering any practice legitimate. TO BE CONTINUED

RUMMAGE SALE

FRIDAY & SATURDAY JUNE 9 & 10

Our 21st rummage sale is coming—June 9-10. Since we are now having mass in the gym each weekend, this year we will be needing extra help to set up the gym for the rummage sale and then clean up after the sale is over and get the gym ready for weekend mass. Look for more information in the weeks ahead for the ways you can help.

Among other things, we'll be collecting household items, children's toys, tools, antiques, collections, baby items, games, clothing, puzzles, household furniture. Rule to follow: if you wouldn't buy it, don't bring it.

We'll also be collecting medium size Target bags to be used at the sale. Drop them off at the Parish Office.

Questions? Call Imogene — 812- 963-5221
