MAY 21, 2023 THE ASCENSION OF THE LORD

Dear friends,

This week we celebrate the graduations of our high school and grade school parishioners. Many of our college students graduated in the past several weeks. Graduation ceremonies are filled with commencement speaks exhorting the graduates to use the gift of their lives to make a difference in the world. Well, here are a few examples of people who have made a difference.

Josephine Bakhita was born in Sudan around 1869.

She was kidnapped and enslaved when she was a young child, and suffered terribly as she was growing up. She was sold many times, and was beaten and tortured in many of the households where she was kept. The last slaveholder who enslaved her left her in the care of Canossian Sisters in Italy while he was traveling, and when his family came to claim her, she refused to leave with them. The nuns welcomed her into their community and she spent the rest of her life as a Canossian Sister, acting as the portress and cook. She died in 1947, and was canonized in 2000. She is the patron of human trafficking survivors.

Elizabeth Fry was born May 21, 1780. At the age of 18, Fry had a conversion experience while worshipping at a Quaker meeting. She became dedicated to caring for the poor and sick, and particularly invested in helping those who were imprisoned. In 1813, she began making daily visits to Newgate Prison, where women and their children were incarcerated, and was horrified by the unsanitary and demeaning conditions in which they had to live. She published her observations, which shocked the nation, and used this momentum to create reforms in the prison. Among other innovations, she established a school for the incarcerated children, and organized a system of supervision in the prison where female inmates were overseen by female guards. She also advocated for an end to capital punishment—which, at the time, was a penalty for over 200 crimes—and wrote an influential treatise asserting that prison should be a place of reform, rather than a place of torture.

"How can we expect righteousness to prevail when there is hardly anyone who will give themselves up undividedly to a righteous cause?" said Sophie Scholl, who died in 1943. Scholl was a German student who opposed Nazism by joining with other students—including her brother, Hans—at the University of Munich to create the White Rose, a non-violent movement that distributed some 15,000 pamphlets urging citizens to resist Hitler's regime. Scholl was arrested, and after refusing to cooperate with interrogation, she was subjected to a show trial that resulted in her execution when she was just twenty-one years old.

Leaning into the journey of life

GET ON BOARD THE DIAPER BAG EXPRESS

Each year from Mother's Day to Father's Day we have a tradition of collecting items to help unwed mothers and fathers through Birthright.

We will have diaper bags in our "gym church" which can be filled with powder, lotion, ointment, bottles, wipes, preemie onesies, baby shampoo, girls and boys socks, etc. and then brought back to the gym, or dropped off at the rectory. Get on board and help unwed mothers and fathers by filling a diaper bag for Birthright. Packages of diapers can also be donated. You can also make a cash donation to "Birthright." Put your contribution in an envelope marked "Birthright" and put it in the collection. If you have questions please contact Toni Askins at (812) 457-1334.

PRAYER FOR OUR GRADUATES

May today there be peace within.

May you trust God that you are exactly where you are meant to be.

May you not forget the infinite possibilities that are born of faith.

May you use those gifts
that you have received,
and pass on the love
that has been given to you.

May you be content
knowing you are a child of God.

Let this presence
settle into your bones,
and allow your soul
the freedom to sing,
dance, praise and love.

It is there for each and every one of us

St. Theresa of Avila

CARING FOR OUR COMMON HOME

In this year of Eucharistic Renewal, we continue reading Pope Francis's teaching letter (encyclical) entitled Laudato Si—Caring for Our Common Home and seeing the real presence of God in all things.

It is necessary to take care of public spaces, perspective paintings and urban reference points that increase our sense of belonging, our feeling of being rooted, our "feeling at home" within the city that contains and unites us. It is important that the different parts of a city are well integrated and that the inhabitants can have an overview instead of locking themselves up in a neighborhood, unable to experience the whole city as their own space shared with others.

Any intervention in the urban or rural landscape should consider how the different elements of the place form a whole that is perceived by the inhabitants as a coherent picture with its wealth of meanings. In this way the others cease to be strangers and can be perceived as part of a "we" that we build together.

The housing shortage is severe in many parts of the world, both in rural areas and in large cities, not least because state budgets usually cover only a small part of the demand. Not only the poor, but a large part of society is experiencing serious difficulties in having a home of their own. Home ownership is very important for the dignity of people and for the development of families. This is a central question of human ecology.

If chaotic agglomerations of precarious houses have already developed in a given place, it is above all a question of urbanizing these neighborhoods, not of uprooting and expelling the inhabitants. When the poor live in polluted suburbs or in dangerous agglomerations, it is sometimes necessary to move them and not add to their suffering

At the same time, creativity should lead to the integration of disadvantaged neighborhoods into a welcoming city. How beautiful are the cities that overcome unhealthy distrust and integrate the different and make this integration a new factor of development! How beautiful are the cities that, even in their architectural design, are full of spaces that connect, relate, favor the recognition of the other!

The quality of life in cities is largely linked to transportation, which often causes great suffering for the inhabitants. In cities there are many cars used by one or two people, so the traffic becomes intense, the level of pollution rises, huge quantities of non-renewable energy are consumed and the construction of more roads and parking spaces becomes necessary, which damage the urban fabric.

Many specialists agree on the need to prioritize public transportation. However, some necessary measures are unlikely to be accepted peacefully by society without a substantial improvement in such transportation, which in many cities involves unworthy treatment of people due to crowding, inconvenience or low frequency of services and insecurity.

The recognition of the particular dignity of the human being often contrasts with the chaotic life that people must lead in our cities. However, this should not make us forget the state of abandonment and neglect that some inhabitants of rural areas also suffer, where essential services do not arrive and there are workers reduced to slavery, without rights or expectations of a more dignified life

Human ecology also implies the necessary relationship of the life of the human being with the moral law inscribed in his own nature. This is an indispensable relationship in order to be able to create a more dignified environment. The acceptance of one's body as a gift from God is necessary to welcome and accept the whole world as a gift from the Father and a common home. Learning to welcome one's body, to take care of it and to respect its meanings is essential for a true human ecology. Also appreciating one's body in its femininity or masculinity is necessary in order to be able to recognize oneself in the encounter with the other who is different from oneself. In this way it is possible to joyfully accept the specific gift of the other, the work of God the Creator, and mutually enrich one another.
