 Joan is a Catholic speaker and writer who loves to make Scripture, theology, liturgy, and history accessible and applicable. She has a bachelor's degree in history from Christendom College and a masters in theology from Franciscan University of Steubenville. She moved down to Nashville to work for the Dominican Sisters at Aquinas College. In 2013, she began working for the Diocese of Nashville as Director of Adult Formation and was later promoted to Director of Faith Formation. She recently left the diocese to pursue her dream of writing and speaking full-time. She is the Associate Editor of Integrated Catholic Life, where she writes weekly. She also cohosts The Catholic Traveler Podcast with her friend, Mountain Butorac, with whom she also leads pilgrimages to Europe and the Holy Land. Propelled by Luke 12:48, she is passionate about helping others encounter Christ and enter into friendship with Him through the daily circumstances of life.
