“I believe a teacher needs to bring a high degree of enthusiasm to his or her classroom every day to in addition to knowledge of their subject area(s). A teacher is a role model who represents the highest model of character and good citizenship. A teacher should also have a genuine concern and respect for his or her students and treat every individual with fairness and dignity, There should be a close partnership between a student, teacher, and parent to accomplish goals for academic achievement.”

I have been teaching at Immaculate Conception School for 30 years, currently teaching 3rd grade. I earned my B.S. in Elementary Education and a Master of Science Education from Clarion University of Pennsylvania. In the summer I teach a 4 day Science Camp, which incorporates hands on science and activities with reading trade books. I live in Clarion, Pennsylvania with my husband, Randy. Together with have 6 children, Wayne, Nicole, Nate, Neil, Gus and Ben. We also have a Yorkie, named Penny. My favorite prayer is the serenity prayer because it gives me a sense of calm and peace. Outside the classroom, I enjoy all sports especially, football and baseball, walking my dog, vacationing at the beach, cooking and spending time with my family.

Immaculate Conception School is special because the teachers and staff surround each child with faith, compassion, kindness, values, morals, and an exceptional education. This I believe produces a well-rounded student that will have great success, while learning in a safe environment!
