Grace Notes: Reflections from Father Joe

The parable of the two sons teaches that true obedience is not in words but in deeds. God welcomes all who repent and turn back to Him, regardless of past sin or failure. Empty promises and outward religiosity are meaningless before the Father, who desires a heart that obeys in love. The Kingdom of God belongs to those who, though once disobedient, respond to grace with humility and action. Each of us must ask ourselves - “Which son am I—the one who speaks obedience or the one who lives it? God is more pleased with honest repentance than with empty piety. Even when I have said “no” through sin, I can still turn back to Him through conversion. The call to the vineyard is renewed each day; may I respond with sincerity and perseverance.”

Loving Father, You call me to work in Your vineyard and to do Your will in love. Forgive me for the times I have said “yes” but failed to act. Grant me the grace of true repentance and obedience of heart. Amen
