How humility becomes your strength

Fr. Michael Rennier - published on 09/25/22

More than anything, to be humble is to be authentic.

I've always had one not-so-very secret personality flaw -- I'm arrogant.

Maybe it's because I'm one of three brothers, each of us more competitively arrogant than the next. Our poor mother doesn't know how to handle us. One brother will claim he's getting in shape, and I'll respond Big deal, I rode my bike 80 miles yesterday, and our youngest brother will say he rode his bike 100 miles yesterday up a mountain in California and was the fastest one up and no one will ever be faster than him. Whatever the task, my brothers and I will guarantee we can do it best.

If you're reading closely right now, you may have noticed that, ironically, I'm kind of boasting about how arrogant I am. You might think I'm humbling myself by revealing my flaw, but the truth is that I'm willing to share embarrassing facts about myself so readily because I'm unreasonably self-confident.

But there's one problem: my pride doesn't match my abilities. With each passing day, it's becoming abundantly clear that I need to accept reality. This means getting serious about humility.

What is humility, anyway?

Humility is the virtue of accurate insight, the ability to avoid thinking we are that which we are not. There's this odd idea floating around – we all seem to share it to some degree or another -- that we're all fine just the way we are. People claim that they're kind and good, basically salt-of-the-earth, and if there are problems in the world it must be other people causing the ruckus.

It reminds me of the time that G.K. Chesterton, in response to the question, "What's wrong with the world?," fessed up that, if there's a problem, it's because of him. If, in my pride, I convince myself I haven't contributed to the issues that swirl and plague the world, my perspective is probably skewed to the point of being totally inaccurate.

At the very least, it reveals a side-effect of pride. It shrinks our world down to almost nothing by whispering in our all-too-willing ears If you were in charge, everything would be much better. Everything is about me, everything is happening to me, everyone else is an actor in my play.

It brings to mind Satan proudly proclaiming in Milton's "Paradise Lost," "Better to reign in hell than serve in heaven." Groucho Marx, as profound as Milton in his own way, jokes, "I wouldn't be a member of any club that would have a person like me as a member." It's the same with pride. I actually wouldn't be very interested in a world in which I was the best thing going.

Humility, paradoxically, has the opposite effect.

Humility enlarges our world. If it is true self-knowledge, then it follows that it doesn't make us less than we are. To be humble, you don't have to curate a form of ah-shucks low self-esteem, fall into self-pity, or voice negativity about yourself. More than anything, humility is authentic. The more humble you are, the more comfortable you'll be with exactly who you are, knowing the good and willing to work on the bad.

Blessed Fulton Sheen warns, "If we are filled with our own importance, then we can never be filled with anything outside ourselves." Humility is the condition for breaking out of our limited, interior world and out into the infinite life that God has in store for us. Kevin Vost, in his book Humble Strength, points out that humility comes from the Latin word humus, which literally means "earth." Humility keeps us grounded and keeps our feet firmly planted, becoming a source of stability and strength.

I think of Gerard Manley Hopkins, a Jesuit poet I'm fond of reading, who would sit and examine a drop of water on a leaf for hours and sketch the raindrop in his notebook. By becoming very humble and willing to learn from the smallest, most insignificant aspects of nature, the beauty of these simple things helped him know God better. People laughed and thought him very strange, but Hopkins didn't mind. If he seemed odd, well, his own reputation wasn't so important. He desired to raise himself up, not pridefully against God, but humbly towards God.

In order to get a foot onto that lowest rung on the ladder to heaven, to uncover the reason why the lilies of the field are beautiful beyond compare, to turn our souls fully to God, we must be very humble and very honest.

So what's the honest truth? We are flawed. We are messy. We harbor all manner of mistaken ideas about ourselves and our abilities. We do and say arrogant, presumptive things that embarrass us when we look back on them. It's also true that, in spite of this, God loves us dearly, and he will raise us to a heavenly throne if we're humble enough to accept his help.

Humility isn't mediocrity. It's heroic transformation. It's having your feet firmly planted on the earth and reaching for the stars.

GROW AS A DISCIPLE | PRAY, STUDY, ENGAGE, SERVE

There's a well-known story about an actor who was asked by an elderly priest to recite Psalm 23. The actor agreed only if the priest also recited the psalm. While the actor's delivery was met with esteem and applause, the priest's was met with raw emotion, stunned silence, and tears. The actor, smiling, said, "I may know the psalm, but the priest, he knows the Shepherd." I can't help but be reminded of this story when reading today's Gospel. Like the Pharisees, the actor represents the one who was the "center of attention" who was humbled whereas the priest, in his humble service to God, found himself exalted. That is where true humility lies, when our actions and our everyday lives are rooted in God first and not ourselves.

GO EVANGELIZE

PRAYER, INVITATION, WITNESS, ACCOMPANIMENT

As Jesus reminds us today, "Every one who exalts himself will be humbled, but the one who humbles himself will be exalted." Beyond telling us this truth, Jesus lived it. Scripture tells us that Jesus – the second Person of the Holy Trinity – "emptied himself, taking the form of a slave..." (Phil 2:7), and that he came not "to be served but to serve" (Mk 10:45). Each of us is invited to consider the ways we can imitate the same humble servant-leadership which Jesus showed throughout his life. What does servant leadership look like, practically speaking? Some simple examples: At work, it might look like signing up to do those less desirable tasks that others would prefer to avoid. In our homes, it could look mean letting your children or spouse choose what's for dinner rather than asserting your own preferences over meal planning. In our relationships, it might mean allowing a friend to talk through their struggles without offering advice or sharing how you might have handled things differently. With the eyes of faith, each of us can see countless opportunities to practice the virtue of humility in daily life.

WITNESS

Like the priest in the story above who revealed God to the crowd in his recitation of Psalm 23, you have the opportunity to let God shine through in your life to others. Be a servant leader, seeking to glorify God rather than yourself. When you are humble you "will be exalted" and "repaid at the resurrection of the righteous."

Dear Parishioners,

Subject: Update on our Interior Renovation Restoring the Sacred

I am pleased to inform you that our Fundraising for Restoring the Sacred that formally began the first week of Easter has been a great success.

As of September 1, funds that have been committed to the project total $1,354,740. Of that amount, $788,788.46 has already been collected.

Both the committed and collected figures include $468,655 that was raised for the project prior to the beginning of the formal campaign.

The total project cost was last estimated to be $1,574,169, which leaves an additional $219,429 yet to be raised. We are planning some other fund-raising efforts in October. The question I am often asked is "When can we begin?". These are the steps we must follow before work begins. We must raise the remaining $219,429 in commitments. We need to apply for final approval for the bridge loan from the Diocese. We must consult with our contractor and vendors, to make sure that the original quotes have remained the same or if there may be an increase. I have also kept the Bishop of the Diocese informed. We will prepare the Parish Center, our original church, for masses during the church renovation closure.

During the coming weeks I will be keeping you informed regarding our progress as we get closer to meeting our goals. Please know how grateful I am for your generosity, enthusiasm, and continued support. It is greatly appreciated.

Kind personal regards,

Fr. Wayne C. Genereux, Pastor

Mission Co-Op Weekend, Sept 6/7 (Archdiocese of Imphal, Manipur - India)

Please welcome Rev. Augustine Mailadiyil representing the Archdiocese of Imphal.
He will speak at all Masses on the above weekend as part of the Missionary Co-op. plan.

The Diocese of Imphal, located in Manipur, Northeast India, is home to 34 indigenous Mongolian tribes. Since the first Catholic baptism in 1952, the Catholic population has grown to 101,283. The diocese now includes 45 parishes, 8 mission centers, and 174 priests, with 114 being indigenous tribal priests. Despite facing significant challenges and persecutions, including the martyrdom of six missionaries between 1990 and 2001, the Church in Manipur has thrived and is blessed with many vocations to the priesthood and religious life. Sixteen priests from the Diocese of Imphal are currently serving in the United States.

Since May 3, 2023, Manipur has experienced severe ethnic and religious persecution against Christian minorities. This tragic period has seen unprecedented violence, including the burning of tribal villages, unprovoked shootings, and the deaths of over 500 innocent Christians. Nearly 70,000 people have been displaced, with their homes destroyed. Additionally, 248 churches, including 5 Catholic churches, along with rectories, schools, hostels, and convents, have been vandalized and set on fire, resulting in millions of dollars in damage. Rebuilding these churches and institutions will take several years.

In the immediate term, our focus is on alleviating the suffering of those affected. We seek to provide relief through aid programs and to construct 500 low-cost homes for the most impacted families, at a cost of $6,500 per unit.

Any financial support you can give to the Mission Co-op would be greatly appreciated. More information on the Archdiocese of Imphal can be found at:
